FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

JEREMIAH'S PLACE FINDS A HOME NEW LOCATION AT KINGSLEY COMMUNITY CENTER

On January 1, 2014, the working council team members at Jeremiah's Place moved into a newly renovated, freshly painted space at 6435 Frankstown Avenue in East Liberty. The new 3,544 square foot space is located within the Kingsley Community Center, a perfect location for Jeremiah's Place to call home.

Jeremiah's Place is a nonprofit organization advocating for the safety and well-being of young children and will provide safe, supportive care for children during times of family emergencies. Its mission is to protect and care for the child and connect families to established resources to help strengthen and sustain the family as a unit.

Occupying the new space at the Kingsley Community Center will enable Jeremiah's Place to care for up to 12 children at a time. Previous to the move, they were unable to provide this type of continued care. It will be staffed 24/7 by trauma-informed caregivers and social workers.

Martha Graham, associate broker at Massaro Properties, represented Jeremiah's Place in the search for this location. In understanding the unique requirements of the center, her goal was to find a convenient location, along a PAT Bus line, in a facility that provided the necessary environment to serve families in need, and enable the staff to fulfill its mission. Pete Licastro of Point Bridge Realty Advisors, LLC represented the Kingsley Association.

"Quote from Tammy Murdock about the success of her experience with Massaro Properties and if she is happy with her new space," commented Dr. Tammy Mudock, co-founder of Jeremiah's Place.
