LAMI GRUBB ARCHITECTS RELOCATING TO 1425 FORBES AVENUE

The next step for Lami Grubb Architects, after merging with Glance and Associates, was to explore options to relocate to a larger, more accommodating office space. Martha Graham, of Massaro Properties, LLC, represented the newly joined firm in its search to find a space that met location goals, could accommodate the increased personnel, and had an environment with potential to enable and facilitate creative, collaborative design. Martha Graham found just that at 1425 Forbes Avenue, Pittsburgh.

Lami Grubb Architects recently signed an office lease for 11,200 square feet to occupy the fourth floor of the Forbes Pride Building. Andrew Miller, Adam Vicaro, and Jeremy Kronman of CBRE represented the building owners in the leasing of this historic building.

“We are extremely excited about relocating to the CBD and particularly to the up and coming Uptown neighborhood,” stated Bob Grubb, Principal of Lami Grubb Architects L.P.

Currently, the space is under construction. It will feature an open plan which will set off the layout and technology of the new construction against the backdrop of the former warehouse.

Tentative move in date is slated for March 1, 2015.
